

For you, I re-write a note. About a war in the name of peacefulness. About the murder and the argumentation of humanity. About the cleavage on the base of unity. Perhaps, human beings are destined to enjoy the irony in life. This war really almost drained all of my energy. Not only because so many explosions, bullets, and the blood that scattered everywhere. It forced me to see people dying. But, it also because the situation that trapped me in the crush of a big question. It guided me to determine an answer. For you, I inscribed the ink as the last chapter of this note, so that in the future there is a memory. That I have ever been in a time of struggle. As well as a time of confusion. Before I made a decision. Because of you, finally I determined a choice.
